By The Editor

This issue is respectfully dedicated to the graduates of Grenada High School.

Each member of this class faces great problems. He or she must solve his or her own problems.

If the graduates have not learned to think for themselves, the twelve years spent in the schools have been practically wasted. Few of the things learned in school can be applied to problems of the workaday world.

It is unfortunate that our schools are not equipped to train the hands of students. We doubt seriously that a single graduate has learned to saw a square cut, wipe a joint, set a line of type, splice an electric connection, sharpen a plow point, keep a set of books, take dictation efficiently, or to do anything well which he or she will have to do to get along in the world.

We sincerely hope that, ere the opening of another session, provisions will be made to teach students to work with their hands, for a person who can do something well with the hands occupies the most secure place in the world today. Particularly now when trained hands are in such demand in war industries upon whose output Democracy itself depends, GHS should have manual training courses.

We welcome back to our columns the interesting comments from Corporal Whitaker at Camp Blanding.

Sgt. Theisman and Cpl. Echols were welcome visitors to the Chinch Den Tuesday.

The newly formed organization is the Grenada COUNTY Chamber of Commerce, not a city chamber of commerce by any means. Mr. Allen, the secretary, proposes that he is going to get out into the county as soon as the rush of farm work has passed and become personally acquainted with the people of the county to the end that he may know their problems and that they may know his. Grenada and Grenada county are interdependent, nobody realizes that fact more than Mr. Allen does. When he comes, you will be delighted with him for he is a very interesting gentleman.

Well, Mr. Horn informed me that he added 24 new names to our mailing list when he revised the list Monday. That's not impressive for the Commercial Appeal or the Tupelo Journal, but it indicates continued steady, healthy growth.

If the Northeast Council, recently formed does nothing but make the people of this section realize that they have many things in common, and causes them to consolidate their political and economic power, its organization will not have been in vain. As it is Northeast Mississippi with a huge preponderance of voting power always goes merrily to the polls and puts in office a man from the Piney Woods.

We had a fine editorial about the concrete floors for the hog pens of the city - one that would have thundered down the corridors of Time with the Black Draught editorial - but the old lady said she would quit me if I published it. I am saving it, and will run it the first time I catch her out of town.

Henry Ray, Jr., has advanced one notch in his military career. He is now Private First Class. He is not going to remain there long, is our guess.

War, in our opinion, is just a matter of a few weeks off. When war is declared, we believe the administration will find ready means to stop these strikers. It is a terrible parody on justice that the same government which hales up a youth, puts him in uniform and makes him fight for $21.00 per month will permit strikers to take from this youth the implements to defend himself and defend the country.

Bilbo, our little puppy, is not to receive a diploma tomorrow, but he certainly took a leading part in the commencement program.

It is getting hot as H - but there is little we can do about it, except to write Bilbo - the Senator - about it.

Pvt. William O. Yeager with the Q. M. Department at Camp Shelby spent the week-end with his wife and with his parents in the Mt. Nebo community. He has already received a mechanical rating which permits him to receive $15.00 per month more than a regular private.

Mississippi is the only state in the nation which has not a workmen's compensation law, and this helps accounts for lack of industrial development here.

Captain J. E. Shaw dropped in for a call Thursday.

Dr. Wm. G. Gehri Delivers Commencement Sermon

Speaking with refreshing frankness and with forceful sincerity, Dr. William G. Gehri, of Grace-St. Luke's Episcopal Church of Memphis, delivered a most interesting, instructive and inspiring sermon to the 1941 Graduating Class of Grenada High School in the First Baptist Church on Sunday night.

Closely identified with the youth movement in Tennessee, a man young in years and in outlook, Dr. Gehri analyzed the outlook for the graduates of 1941 in clearly defined terms and from all angles. He examined the society into which the young generation makes its debut, and found it anything but a desirable world in which to live, to work, and to fashion a career.

Orianting his sermon around Acts 2:17 "Your young men shall see visions," Dr. Gehri appealed to the graduates to refrain from a strictly cynical curiosity, and adopt a balanced viewpoint toward life. Their entrance into the world of affairs was at one of the most distressing periods in history, when social, spiritual, economic and political chaos was their heritage. Their elders had proved definitely that there was no strictly scientific approach to an ordered life and society. He alluded to the fiasco of the German effort to reorganize society along solely scientific lines; and pointed to the present world conditions as the outcome of the most systematic employment of scientific theory and practice by German scientists, philosophers, financiers, economists and sociologists. Our own technique of the roaring twenties had had at its disposal the finest production technique the world had ever seen, yet because of its materialistic nature it had defeated its own best interests. It had been extremely egotistical—not a socially minded—generation, and it had produced naught but confusion.

There is a tendency among young people to be paralyzed by the immensity of the problems of the modern world, and to be bored and frustrated in consequence. Many looked to the government to assure their future and security, rather than aspiring to qualify themselves to remedy conditions through their own efforts.

But through the ages, Youth has brought to the solution of society's problems the powerful factors of Enthusiasm and Idealism. Dr. Gehri urged the young man and woman to adhere the views and opinions of their elders as formulae which had failed. "The sayings of Rabbits will not suffice," he declared.

Youth must have the vision to see the world as it is, through its own eyes, and in its own language. In these times there was a unique contribution which the young could make, for their elders and demonstrated their own incapacity to see beyond their own self interest, to the detriment of themselves, and all others.

To world must not be seen in the old terms, nor interpreted according to the old pattern of thought and practice, but these must be abandoned. Where the entirely materialistic method had demonstrated its utter incapacity, faith in God's ultimate plans for its people, according to His teaching, would work it, and when put into practice.

Referring to his experiences in Russia, where he had observed the effects of the restrictive effects of Communistic influence upon education, he reported that the effect of living, and of being educated, under propaganda systems, was to drive all faith, hope and initiative from the mind. There was nothing to look forward to excepting to serve the state as a machine, and to a death with no expectation beyond our earthly career.

Dr. Gehri pictured the South in truly realistic terms as being laden with a vast burden of prejudices, discriminations, and illusions—and being woeful. (Continued on page 12)

Band Week Being Observed Next Week

Grenada Band was the only band at the state contest whose members were not adequately uniformed, and the Band Boosters' Club of Grenada has resolved to do something to remedy this situation; and the people of Grenada, who should realize that a good band, properly clothed and adequately trained, is one of a town's greatest and cheapest assets, are doing so. They are undertaking several projects to obtain money for this worthy cause; advertising in a special edition of one of Grenada's newspapers and a subscription campaign for another.

On Monday, at 10:00 o'clock, a large parade will be staged, inaugurating "Band Week."

Monday evening at 8 o'clock, a Bingo party at the Community House will be another means of raising funds. 50 prizes have been donated by Grenada merchants.

Wednesday afternoon on the public square at 4:00 a cake walk will be staged further to bring in the dough.

All during Band Week, 7-51 Service Station will give one cent on every gallon of gasoline sold, and one-half the receipts from every greasing job.

The crowning event of the week will be the Mummy Minstrel which will be at Grenada High School on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. A twenty-five cents admission charge will be made. The interlocutor will be Mrs. C. C. Richardson; the end "men" will be Miss Lucy Webb Sharp and Mesdames Ernest Penn, H. D. Lane, J. D. Quinn, Walter V. Davis, and Sam McCune. The chorus will consist of Misses Martha Hoffa, Susan Proby, Anna Rose Finney, Marguerite Finney, Ruth Sweetland, Louise Smith, Stella Irby, Pauline Elliott and Sammie Hubbard and Mesdames Rogers Pleasants, Roger Dollarhide, Giles Patty, R. H. Herring, and Walter Garner, and Misses Chloe Luckin, Betty Rule and Jackie Lane.

ALL CHILDREN WANTED IN MONDAY'S PARADE

All children of the town are asked to be at the School Ground Monday at 9:30 a. m. for Band Boosters' parade. Bring your pets and carry or lead them in the parade. Those with bicycles are asked to decorate their bicycles if they can, but bring your bicycle whether you decorate it or not.

If you have no pet or bicycle, come and follow the clowns in the parade.

Date And Purpose Of Poppy Day

Memory of America's war dead in the first World War will be honored here on Saturday, May 24, when everyone will be asked to wear a memorial poppy in tribute to their service and sacrifice.

Plans for the observance of Poppy Day are being completed by the Grenada Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary under the leadership of Mrs. J. B. Keeton, Poppy Day chairman. The memorial flowers, made by disabled war veterans, will be offered on the streets throughout the day by the Auxiliary women.

"This year, with the threatening shadow of a new World War falling across America, the memorial poppy has new significance," said the chairman. "It shows that America still remembers and honors those who fell in its defense twenty-three years ago; that Americans still believe that America's free way of life is worth any sacrifice, and that the spirit of patriotism still burns strongly in American hearts."

Mississippi's Largest Army Air Base

Rapidly nearing completion on the western outskirts of Mississippi's Capital City is the new $4,000,000 U. S. Army Air Base, (above) one of the most modern and complete aviation centers in the South.

Destined to be the home of more than 3000 officers and men of the 38th Bombardment Squadron and other Army aviation units, the new base consists of more than 100 buildings, including barracks, mess halls, hangars, repair shops, fire station, radio tower, hospital, recreation building, parachute headquarters and numerous other structures—a veritable town with itself.

Electric and natural gas service not only for the giant Air Base but also for the nearby housing project, of 60 modern officers' homes, is being furnished by Mississippi Power & Light Company, whose engineers and construction crews, living up to the company's preparedness claim, literally performed a miracle by making service available to the new site almost overnight.

Tapping its west end sub-station, Mississippi Power & Light Company construction crews strung several miles of transmission lines to the site and is now supplying the Base with more than 100 kilowatts of electric power with sufficient reserve available to serve 1000 kilowatts of load—if and when needed, or two and one-half times present needs.

Natural gas to supply the needs of the Air Base and housing project was obtained by Mississippi Power & Light Company crews by tapping the six-inch high-pressure line that brings the fuel from the world's largest natural gas field in Louisiana.

Again proving the fact that it is fully prepared to play its part in national defense, Mississippi Power & Light Company announced that the giant main is capable of supplying the military project with five times as much gas as present demands.

In keeping with the modern trend, the Air Base is completely mechanized, even down to electrically-operated potato peelers in the kitchens. Other electrical requirements include huge motors to turn metal lathes and other heavy equipment in the complete airplane repair shops, flood lighting of field and runways, a complete street lighting system, water pumping, and numerous other modern adaptations of utility service.

Explaining how the power needs of an overnight military project such as the Air Base are provided, officials of the Mississippi Power & Light Company point to the fact that their system is interconnected with a nation-wide power grid, a development of private industry, which makes available an almost unlimited supply of electricity. At present Mississippi Power & Light Company has available eight separate sources of power, including the giant Sterling Steam-Generating Station in the heart of the Louisiana gas field, the hydroelectric plants at Rummel and Carpenter, in nearby Arkansas, generating stations at New Orleans and Baton Rouge and TVA at Memphis.

An interesting and heartening sidelight is the fact the nation-wide power grid of which Mississippi Power & Light Company is a part has generating capacity greater than the combined electric output of Germany, France and England. This huge power capacity makes it unnecessary for the United States to spend any of its vitally-needed defense dollars on power plants and transmission lines—all defense dollars can go for the purpose of providing airplanes and guns, tanks and ammunition.

Farmers and Businessmen Urged To Join Northeast Mississippi Council

Farmers and businessmen of our county will be called on to join the Northeast Mississippi Council during the first week of June when citizens of 25 counties in this area make their first organized bid to obtain fair recognition in state affairs and to raise the income of Northeast Mississippi through improved farm methods, better market outlets, and opening of new industries.

Throughout every county in this district during the first week of June, active leaders will participate in a financial drive to raise funds to carry out the Northeast Mississippi Council's program—modeled to some degree after the highly successful Delta Council, but adapted to fit the needs of one of the potentially most prosperous, but actually most neglected, sections of the South.

Memberships in the Council will be $2.00 for individuals, with multiple memberships being taken by cities, counties, corporations, and other large business establishments. The membership and financial drive, headed by a prominent Oxford man, W. N. Etheridge, will seek to enroll every man in the 25 counties interested in seeing the income of this area built up to a level comparable to that in other sections of the nation.

Civic leaders in every northeast county have thrown their active support behind the Council's program because they have watched Mississippi's income from crop sales drop from $101,700,000 five years ago to $91,150,000 in 1940, and know the truth of warnings by economic leaders that conditions in strictly rural areas, especially those primarily dependent on cotton, will be exceedingly bad after the war unless a more stable economic system is built.

In calling for the backing of the farmers and businessmen alike in the Council's program of raising Northeast Mississippi, George McLean, of Tupelo, Council president, asserted this week.

"Leaders in every county in Northeast Mississippi have been talking about the necessity of organizing and trying to overcome the adverse conditions we have experienced. The Northeast Mississippi Council was formed to get this cooperation from all the people of this area. We hope to get our share of defense projects, on which we have thus far been neglected, as well as to work for state and national legislation affecting the welfare of this section.

"It is even more important, we hope that by combining our financial resources and our efforts we will create a better agricultural and industrial development in this area. The day has come when we must look to ourselves and not depend on someone else to raise the level of our incomes. We have too long depended on getting leaders in Jackson or Washington to give us leadership and bring us development.

"From the industrial point of view, we have many possibilities. However, when we have tried to interest new industries in this area, we have usually talked only about the fact that we had good people, a good climate, good water and similar generalities. We have not known the basic economic facts that are necessary to attract new industries.

"The Northeast Mississippi Council believes that if we will hire a really first class industrial research man who will gather all possible information concerning freight rates, raw materials, available labor, and markets for specific industries, we will be able to either attract outside industries or to develop them on a small scale ourselves.

"For example, we know that we have some timber in this area but it has largely been sold off in the form of logs or sawed lumber. The real profit from timber comes from manufactured articles. There are an enormous number of different things that can be manufactured out of wood but only a few plants manufacturing a very few products have come into this area. We are largely sending our timber to other sections which give employment to their people in making articles from our lumber.

"In the same way, we have a large number of clays, and these are useful for many industrial purposes, but we are largely shipping them out of the area and not processing them in Northeast Mississippi.

"We know that there is money in quality poultry products, such as broilers, and eggs, yet we have largely failed to develop this quality market. We are sending our corn to Memphis, where it is processed into feed, and then shipped back to us. This is utterly foolish. We are growing hogs and selling them on foot when we should be developing a packing industry which could produce just as fine bacon, ham and other products as any section of the country.

"Their confidence in our ability to develop these possibilities has already led more than half the counties in the district to agree to join the Council and by the opening of the financial drive in June, the support of every county in Northeast Mississippi is expected."

Our old friend, Marcus Lancaster, now making his home in Hardwood, La., is visiting back at his real home in Grenada.

Congratulations

I was startled to hear that our over-seer, George Terrell, was thinking about joining the army.

I am in the mood to raise hell about something but guess I'd better not. However, while I'm thinking about it (as if I could forget it), without making myself liable, I wish that it—whether man would cool off or not a little.

Dear Bro. Allen: I had two whole weeks to think your case over. At last I've arrived at my conclusion. You know, according to Greek mythology, there's a lake in the lower world whose water produces, in those who drink it, forgetfulness of former existence; hence, oblivion. I refer you to Edgar Allan Poe's poem, "The Sleeper" wherein he gives a good description of this lake, "Lethes." After reading the poem you will know whether or not you have visited this lake whose waters are so potent that amnesia was your reward for drinking it.

Sgt. Hooker was made happy by the visit of his girl friend, and love grand. Sgt. Incidentally, less I err, she is one of those "Auntie" types.

The following lines were written by Lt. Joseph C. Bonner. I thought the verse rather sweet so here it is:

TO MY MOM:
A son of a mother should be proud indeed,
For in his good raising she takes the lead.
To bring out the best qualities a man should possess;
To stand by his side when in distress.
May God bless a mother as courageous as mine,
And upon her soul may His beams of happiness shine.
For my Mom deserves the honor and distinction she possesses,
And the best comfort to me is my Mom's caresses.

There are enough non-coms in the tent that Bryant Thomas quarters in, four. I believe, I think Pvt. Thomas would like for several of them to cream for he is tired of doing all the cleaning up.

Back in school I was taught that there were two ways to do a thing. The right way and the wrong way. A disgusted soldier will tell you there are three ways: The right and wrong way and the army way.

We are expecting the "Birth of the Nation" to be shown down here at the Division Theatre, shortly. We have had the pleasure of seeing similar fresh released pictures.

How about one of you kind Grenada citizens sending me a snail box full of good ole Grenada clay from the square? I'll be looking for it.

Corporal Bell says, "He's through with the wimmin forever. According to him, they just can't be trusted." Well, Corp. I refer you to Lord Chesterfield's letter-essay on the females. There's some food for thought in it, eh Miss Turner?

Friends of W. T. Mann will be glad to hear that he has made his first solo flight. All the fellows in this battery think a lot of "T" and wish him all the luck in the world. You fair maidens who write him will have to send his mail to the Naval Air Base near Jacksonville as he was transferred there from Tampa last week.

Captain Thomas Brazzette, who recently returned from Fort Still, Okla., is now the commander of this battery. This battery is proud of the fact that it has one of the most able battery commanders in the D.M.E. A. We are going to endeavor to go over the top for him as we have for our other "old man," army slang for battery commander.

... preparing for the summer, officers which will take place in the Sabine River area. The artillery is most of its moving at night so as not to give away its position to enemy and since a column of trucks are so valuable to an attack. This necessitates the loss of a lot of sleep as we are gradually being broke in so we can function properly on a very little shut-eye.

Sgt. Theisman, Corp. Echols, Pvt. Griffin, Sgt. Vance, Pvt. Pope, Pvt. Hecan, Pvt. Neal and Corp. James are now enjoying themselves on leave.

There were so many promotions made we had it impossible to mention all of them. We will take the non-coms this week and try to get around to the first class privates and specialists next week.

Move over brother Longfellow, give me the road, man of renown who name and fame will go ringing down through the ages. Let me quote a line from your famous "My Last Youth." Although I haven't my youth entirely I have, however, recently visited the town of my birth as you did your little town by the sea shore. Gee, Bro. Longfellow, I'm homesick, "what can I do?" There's something about that place, and as you wrote: "There are things of which I may not speak."

There are dreams that will not die. There are thoughts that will make the strong heart weak. And bring a pallor into the cheek and a mist before the eye.

(Note: Somebody is crazy, the reader says to himself, and it damn "shore" ain't me.) That takes care of everybody except ole Whitaker and I bet I know what's wrong with him. He has drunk some of that water that creates forcefulness, weak-mindedness, imbecility, and temporary insanity out of the Fountain of Youth down there in Florida, just like someone else did.

"Vell, Vell, Spring has done come and vent." All that morale that I built up during the Spring is melting right out of me. That mental state that makes it possible for us to sustain courage, determination, and endurance in times of test and trouble is coming out through my minute pores.

"Hoot" Roane makes the enlisted personnel of the direction center, composed of "Moose" Batson, Russell Hooker and Ralph Schultz, hank their heads in utter shame. He can really get those boys' goat when he starts kidding them.

MAKE ALTERATIONS AND IMPROVEMENTS DURING YOUR VACATION

The end of a vacation usually means the return to a routine existence in the "same old place" . . . but it needn't. Minor repairs and modernization can make almost any "old place" seem new and exciting.

Let us fix your house while you are on your vacation, and double the thrills, by making the return trip as attractive as the "going away". You'll be pleasantly surprised when you learn how much can be accomplished easily and inexpensively.

Get away from the fuss and dirt of remodeling. No matter how careful and considerate a carpenter may be, he always causes some inconvenience because of the noise and materials scattered about. Make the "between vacation" living better by remodeling this summer while you're away.

What's Going On In Grenada

This is the second of a series of articles dealing with the industries and institutions of Grenada, which make for Grenada's progress and prosperity. These articles, too, will answer the pessimist who says, "We ain't got nothing in Grenada."

North Mississippi Sales Company

The North Mississippi Sales Company, located on part of the Fair grounds in South Grenada, foras a meeting place for the buyers and sellers of livestock, agricultural products and farming tools, principally the former.

It was organized in July, 1938 by Messrs. J. B. Keeton, who acted as bookkeeper, W. A. Martindale, who acted as outside man, and J. L. Bransome, who looked after the actual selling. In October, 1940, Mr. Keeton retired on account of his health and Mr. Guy Bransome bought the Keeton interest. Charles Perry looked after the record keeping and stays on the job all the time, at the present time.

The business has grown as time passed until today there is in process of construction a much larger sales ring, sheltered from the weather, which is capable of furnishing seats for about 1500 people. An office has been built recently, with a safe and more stock pens will soon be built.

Public auction sales are held every Thursday, and the expeditions and systematic handling of individual sales has permitted the sale of nearly 400 animals in one day. There is no monkey business in the auctions, such as a fellow bidding a dollar for a forty dollar cow. For one member of the firm, Mr. J. L. Bransome, his always present and he invariably bids within a dollar or so of the market value of the animal, and this figure, the seller that he will get almost, if not over the real market value of his animals. Mr. Bransome is a keen judge of values, yet he sometimes "slips" and bids more than the value, but invariably he takes his medicine like a man and has never been known to say "I". When the animal is "knocked down" the owner still has the freedom of refusing to accept the price offered and can repossess his animal WITHOUT ANY CHARGES. If the price is satisfactory a commission of 5 percent plus ten cents sub-charge is assessed against the sale price of the animal.

In general, the animals which are sold come from the Delta, from Grenada, Calhoun, Carroll, Tallahatchie, Yazoo, Webster, Montgomery and surrounding counties. They are sold to Grenada county farmers, to Scott & Co. to the Delta Packing Company of Clarksdale and to feeders in Tate and Panola counties, and elsewhere. Just this week, two trailer loads were sold to a man in Union City, Tennessee.

One great advantage of this system might be illustrated by Mr. Bud West, for example, who has a large acreage of soy beans ready to be harvested. Instead of him riding all over the country collecting bids, he can go to the sale and buy what he wants and have them cutting beans the next day. This is fairly the way of illustration.

Illustrating the size of the business, it might be stated that last Thursday about 1000 animals were sold for about $100,000. An average day for 1941 would be 700 animals and $100,000 turnover. The biggest day's business we understand was when 920 head of cattle and 500 hogs were sold for about $140,000. From the beginning of operation, it is conservatively estimated that over $650,000 worth of livestock and agricultural products have been sold. As in all business, these men would get rich if it were not for the expense, but by hard, persistent work they have been able to make money in spite of the necessarily heavy expense of operation, including a high salaried auctioneer on Thursdays.

Illustrating how you would proceed to sell a bull yearling, you lead him to the unloading chute where he is tagged in the ear; you are given a receipt; he is placed in a pen with other bull yearlings; when the time comes for that class of stock to be sold, your yearling is pushed into the pen where Mr. Bransome bids within a dollar of his real value; and, if no other bids are made, buys him; if higher bids are made, he is sold to some other person; a ticket containing the number, the name of the buyer and the name of the seller and the price sold for is made out, and this ticket is sent to the office; you go to the office, turn in your original receipt and get a check for the gross sale less 5 percent and less 10 cents yardage. Sometimes as many as 150 animals are thus sold within an hour. Every deal is a cash transaction. Every animal and every other commodity is sold in the same manner. On and on go similar transactions sometimes far into the night. Sellers bringing them in, and buyers hauling them away. Thursdays are indeed lively days at these sales, and the sales attract buyers and sellers from all over the Tri States.

While the public sales at auction are restricted to Thursdays, this organization will buy or sell any day in the week. A cash market is assured at all times. And likewise those wishing to buy have a wide variety of animals to select from.

For people, outside those personally interested, have any idea of the volume of business done so rapidly at the weekly sales of The North Mississippi Sales Company, and a trip there on Thursday would be an eye-opener. Certainly it is worth something to Grenada itself to have so many people from so many communities get the "Grenada habit," and this they do when they come so often to the weekly sales.

Me and the GCW.

Again we urge that bicycle riders be made to stay off the sidewalks, and that they be made to observe the traffic lights.

Mississippi will continue to be the poorest segment of the English-speaking world as long as its citizens continue to elect sorry people to posts of importance in government.

Two Sermons

Two splendid sermons were preached at the Commencement exercises at the First Baptist Church Sunday night: first, the scheduled Commencement Sermon by Dr. W. H. Gehrl, and, second, an unannounced, extemporaneous sermon by Bilbo, our little puppy. The first sermon will be recorded by Herbert B. Allen. We will deal with Bilbo's sermon. Bilbo's subject was "Loyalty," and well did he preach upon that subject.

Bilbo and I attended the exercises. Knowing Bilbo's precociousness and inquisitiveness, and knowing that should I take a seat inside, Bilbo would also take his seat inside, he and I and the colored janitor enjoyed Dr. Gehrl's sermon from the outside, looking through the window.

After the sermon our young daughter, Carolyn, had a solo part. Having difficulty hearing her from the outside, I moved to the entrance of the church. Bilbo, of course, followed. I thought Bilbo would move about the entrance but keep with me. Bilbo by the way, is Carolyn's dog. I play second fiddle to her in Bilbo's affections and he never leaves any doubt of that.

When Bilbo heard his mistress's voice, nothing could restrain him. Without warning and evading all would-be interceptors, he bolted down the aisle, jumped into Brother Thrower's lap (using him as a stepping stone to higher things), and catapulted himself at once into Carolyn's presence, much to her embarrassment.

Bilbo did not say a word, but his actions, more eloquent than any words, bristled with loyalty and love. Bilbo did not take a text, but had a text, it would probably have been taken from the 13th verse of the 15th chapter of John, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

Several were unkind enough to compare "Bilbo" with this distinguished namesake by saying that Bilbo would be no obstacle, not even a robust, chicken-fed Methodist preacher, stand in the way of his ambitions; and another said that, like his eminent namesake, Bilbo always sought the spotlight.

Anyway, Bilbo preached a fine sermon.

Not Worn Out

There's many a good mile of riding in the old buggy yet. It is a truism that car drivers will begin to appreciate more and more as the pressure upon car manufacturers by war orders become greater and the supply of new cars become smaller.

It is real economy, of course, to do as many regular drivers do, that is exchange their old car as quickly as it is used for and get a new model; in short, make a regular payment on a car a month. In that way, the driver always has a GOOD car. But, as war tension increases, more and more of the manufacturing facilities of car makers are being commandeered for the manufacture of tractors, tanks and other implements of war.

It is not unlikely, therefore, that ere long a person can not get a new car on demand. In fact, some cars are difficult to get delivery on right now, and that tendency will grow.

We will remember that when we used to drive a Model T, it was customary to tear it down, grind the valves, hone the cylinders and tighten the connecting rod bearings and the main bearing about every 2000 or less miles. Modern cars are built to run without turning a nut for tens of thousands of miles. If kept properly lubricated, they, too, CAN be overhauled and returned to the owner for more service than an old type of car would give when brand new.

Nuts can be turned and tightened, bearing can be ground, cylinders can be honed and valves ground on modern cars even better than such could be done upon the old Model T. Modern repair equipment, testers and gadgets make such a job not only accurate, but speedy.

As time goes on, we folks are going to be forced to take the old cars to the garageman or repairman more and more, instead of swapping in the first time there is a squeak.

The following comment taken from the Sunday edition of the Washington Merry-Go-Round is significant: The letter, which OPM Director General Knudsen sent auto makers that they will have to hold down their 1942 car production to 78.5 per cent of this year's output, is considered only a beginning. Insiders predict that there will be another big cut soon.

And, let us say in passing, that Grenada has plenty of mechanics and plenty of equipment to tune them up in first-class style.

The Food Stamp Plan

"What has happened to the Food Stamp Plan for Grenada county?" is a question that no one seems to be able to answer.

We cannot but recall that at the enthusiastic meeting held here to hear Mr. Gilroy explain the plan, it was brought out that Lee county had muffed its chance because of the reluctance of the bankers (maybe it was one of the bankers) to play ball with the other elements of the community. We were astounded to pick up the Tupelo Journal Saturday to find a special edition celebrating the beginning of the Food Stamp Plan in Lee county. In the meantime Grenada county, which qualified so far as local interests and local commitments are concerned many, many months ago, has neither obtained the Food Stamp Plan nor, so far as we have been able to hear, has received any indication that it will ever receive the benefits of the Food Stamp Plan.

Is Grenada county forever to be the Lazarus to receive only the crumbs from the hands of our representatives in Congress—a few road projects, some minor WPA grave the other things that it would receive even if it had no representation whatever in Washington. Are our representatives asleep, powerless or indifferent to Grenada county?

Our supervisors (backed up a gentleman's agreement with the city council to cooperate in the finances) have approved the plan; our wholesale and our retail grocers have agreed to abide by the rules, and our bankers have agreed to do their part. What, then, is the hitch? We pause for an answer.

Let's make Grenada 10,000 by 1950.

Clerks and store-owners, try leaving YOUR car at home next Saturday.

With liquor in two out of every three homes, how can the officers enforce prohibition?

There is no justification for all of our important offices in state government being filled with members of the legal profession. Government is not a plaything; it is Big Business.

FROM A REBEL HILL TOP

By The Grenadier

Grenada had a distinguished visitor last week in the person of the suave, salesman, Jack Robinson. Jack has been an ambassador of American business in South Africa for many years, and is now lecturing on South American topics all over the United States. He spoke to our Lions Club.

Canadian born, he served with the U. S. Army in the Spanish American war and with the British Army in South Africa during the Boer War. The foreign born citizen is usually either more patriotic or less patriotic, than the average native born American. Jack Robinson is a patriot with a wide margin to spare, and is nationally active in veteran circles.

He has been a prominent figure in the baseball world, having played in the Southern and American Associations and for the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League. We were glad to hear Jack's favorable comment on our Grenada High School baseball team, when he complimented Coach Hathorn on his squad. He saw Grenada play twice in the elimination games.

Mr. Robinson gave an unusually graphic and interesting account of how German firms get business in South America which impressed us as being extremely important to our future in Latin American trade.

The prospective German salesman is carefully chosen for general aptitude. He must speak English, Spanish and Portuguese fluently, and possesses a thorough knowledge of the history of each South American country.

If he is to sell textiles, he is given a sound training in the manufacture of textiles in German factories, and then is sent out to some South American city, such as Rio de Janeiro, in Brazil. There employment is obtained for him in a retail store, so that he may become acquainted with the requirements of the local trade.

He receives a small salary which is supplemented by the Germans to enable him to live on a high plane, meeting the best families in his new location. He participates in all of the fiestas so dear to the Latin heart, carefully card-indexes all of the birthdays of acquaintances, and makes himself as prominent as possible in the consciousness of his neighbors.

When he has become familiar with one city, he is transferred to other cities in the same country—and then to other cities in other South American countries. This process takes ten or twelve years, in which time he has continued to keep in touch with all of his friends and acquaintances throughout South America.

He is now ready to return to Grenada to become familiar with developments in the textile industry during his absence. He then returns to South America as a salesman for a wholesale house. He commences his selling career with a wide acquaintance which assures him of a successful start.

All German merchandise is carried in German vessels, and the financial transactions are handled through German banks. Just before the bill for the goods arrives, the German banker calls on the Latin customer to assure him that his credit is so good that he may have an extended credit on the goods he has bought—and invites him to buy more German merchandise with the cash he had intended to pay for the first shipment.

Gradually the South American merchant is involved with the German banker to the point where he takes his account from the local bank and opens an account with the German banker.

Closely cooperating with the salesman and the banker are the officers of the German cargo boats which carry the merchandise. The captain invites the merchant out to inspect his vessel, and to have dinner on board while the ship is in harbor. Every German in any way involved in the deal, the salesman, the banker, the captain of the German cargo vessel, the supercargo on board the German vessel who is in charge of the ship's business affairs, and the German counsel at point of destination, all cooperate fully to further Germany's commercial interests in every way possible.

If the South American merchant leaves his own city to travel elsewhere, his movements are reported through the German diplomatic agencies and he will be called on, and entertained by the German officials in the cities in which he visits. No courtesy is overlooked by the Germans in their efforts to impress their customer with their unfailing interest in his affairs. And in consequence they may eventually receive practically all of his business and provide all of the shipping and banking facilities he requires.

In response to a question from Mr. Henry J. Ray as to how American manufacturers could cope with such competition, Mr. Robinson replied that American business cannot very well compete with Germany on lower grade merchandise. But from his experience in selling an average of seven million dollars worth of high grade paper products annually to South American buyers, over a period of several years, Mr. Robinson was very optimistic over the prospects for American exports to Latin America in all high grade lines.

However, he emphasized that the government was not as active in the field in support of American exports as they had been twenty years ago. We have a Department of Cultural Relations which amused Mr. Robinson very much. He gave his listeners an account of culture, in many of its forms as it exists in South America today, which was very enlightening indeed. If some Grenadians do not visit South America on vacation, as a direct result of hearing Mr. Robinson speak, we shall be very much surprised.

Too Self Satisfied

Several weeks before the first of the "Opportunity Days" being put on by Greenwood merchants was advertised, The GCW sent our Mr. Greenfield to see if he could stimulate interest in advertising a "Dollar Day" in Grenada. He claims to have made a comprehensive canvass of the business section to see if he could interest enough merchants in advertising dollar bargains to justify a page advertisement in this newspaper. . . he obtained Dollar Day ads from FIVE merchants, only five. The idea of Dollar Day for Grenada was dropped by us like a hot brick.

Our idea of Dollar Day might not have been a good idea, but nobody can deny that some concerted means of attracting many people to Grenada is a good idea. If we do not want to call the day "Dollar Day," let's call it something else. Let's stimulate interest among the buyers in our trade territory to come en masse to Grenada by doing something, whether having a Dollar Day, or

UNDER THE MAGNOLIA TREE

By Herbert B. Allen

Our newspapers are filled from day to day with news of military, naval and aerial developments in the great war raging around the world. I have not written on the World War for some time, and as I appear to be among the very few editorial writers taking a progressively optimistic view of events centering around London, I shall set forth some of the basic considerations upon which my opinions and judgments, with respect to England's position, are grounded.

My very first remembrances of breakfast time find me seated on the knee of a slender, red faced, blue eyed person who bore the supreme title of Grandpa. He was a fiend on history and geography, and commenced before I knew what was going on, to plant those seeds of wanderlust in my heart, which eventually were to lead me, via way of Shanghai and Zanzibar, to Grenada, Mississippi.

That little, old Gentleman, bore another designation, which meant something to the world, but little to me in those days. It was the military title of Major General. His generation of adventurers had brought much territory to the British flag and the generation of my father did much to consolidate their advances into the world's backward regions. My father, incidentally, paid the supreme personal penalty, and he rests in the soil of Africa. We never saw one another.

As I grew older, there was given to me with great clarity, the history of England, and of English policy, not as it is recorded in history books, but as it is seen by those daring persons who not only have a deep concern in understanding the world in which they live, but who have the supreme good fortune to actually have some small hand in the shaping of the affairs of men.

In the light of my present understanding of British policy, learned from my grandparents, my senior officers, when I in turn also wore the King's uniform, and from British editors under whom I worked in England in later years, I shall describe briefly why I think the American people are so swayed by the war news from day to day, and why the developments overnight give me very little concern. I am always prepared to read of British disasters, with only a feeling of gratitude for the boys who did their best, in their time and place, but with no other reaction, save that it is one more minor episode in the myriad of events which constitute the eventful life of the Anglo-Saxon people.

England is a small nation, living on an island approximately the size of the State of Mississippi. Its traditional enemies have been nations on the continent of Europe. Because of its geographical position it bottles up, to a great extent, the northern European nations by its dominance of the North Sea and the English Channel. And to the south it bottles up southern European nations through its control of the Mediterranean Sea at Gibraltar and the Suez Canal.

The fundamental policy of the Royal Navy is to prevent the union of any naval forces; when in combination, would exceed the strength of the British Navy in any particular part of the world. So long as Britain maintains her control of strategic points, the remnants of the German, Italian and French fleets cannot unite with the Japanese Navy, to form a formidable battle fleet which would be powerful enough to challenge the British Fleet.

The expense of maintaining the Royal Navy lies heavily on a small population. And it is a cardinal policy of the English speaking people, both British and American, to maintain large, expensive navies, and to rely on a small professional army, which must be vastly expanded in time of war. Neither the British nor the United States armies are first class armies in time of peace. Neither have sufficient funds appropriated for their maintenance to enable them to purchase the latest equipment, and to operate as highly trained and effective units.

The reasons for this broad policy of the United States and Great Britain are obvious. Defense of their coast lines, commerce, and colonial possessions, is absolutely essential. This defense is, of course, naval. And a navy is something that cannot be designed, built and trained in a short time. The training of naval personnel is a matter of many years of the most constant and diligent effort.

Armies are not created overnight either. William Jennings Bryan to the contrary notwithstanding. But it is possible to raise and train armies, and convert peacetime industrial systems to wartime basis, even though, it is a slow and painful process. And in the meantime, the armies of democratic countries must be prepared to absorb very drastic punishment until such time, three or four years at least, as they have developed a trained army in sufficient numbers, and their industrial machine is operating on an efficient wartime basis.

In England's case there was also the vital consideration that in recent times there has been a military arrangement with France, which was intended to compensate England for her expenditures on a large navy, while France supported a very large army.

The world knows of the collapse of France. And that England's disasters have been such mild ones is the delightful surprise of this war. England will have more difficult times in the coming twelve months. Her defeats are not of vital importance in those regions of the earth in which the heaviest fighting is taking place at present.

The transport line through Suez is erroneously called the "Life line" of the Empire. This is not true in any important sense. In our time, England's life line is across the North Atlantic. There is no comparison between the importance of the Atlantic life line and the Mediterranean life line. And in next week's column we shall deal with the real life line of the English speaking world, the United States Navy and the Royal Navy.

A Penny Day, or a Turkey Day. Let's have some kind of "day."

Grenada, which has enjoyed a healthy, steady growth from year to year, has done so in spite of itself. Very little concerted, sustained effort has been made to make Grenada what it is. It is more like Topsy, who "just grew." Grenada is too self satisfied, too self sufficient, too snug for its own good.

We sincerely hope that the newly organized chamber of commerce will be a means of arousing Grenada from its lethargy and pushing it rapidly on toward its legitimate goal, that of being in fact, as it is by geography, the Crossroads of North Mississippi.

FORD

The VELVET you ride on

ONCE AGAIN the big Ford car steps 'way beyond its price class with a velvet ride never before known to the low-price field. With its long, soft, slow-motion springs, its velvet-action hydraulic shock absorbers, its more rigid frame and new ride stabilizer, it brings the luxurious velvet riding quality you expect only in costly cars. Velvet quiet, too!—With complete sound-deadening throughout its big, roomy body; and full rubber insulation between body and frame.

The VELVET you save

YOU'RE ALSO on velvet when you buy the 1941 Ford—particularly the 6-passenger "Special" sedans which are actually the lowest-priced sedans among the low-priced leaders. You save on first cost. Then, remember, the Ford was first in its class in the Gilmore-Grand Canyon Economy Test—with over 23 miles to the gallon. You save on operating cost. And when you trade we offer you a generous allowance on your present car traded in on the 1941 Ford.

GIRL RESERVES

Last Tuesday evening the Girl Reserves ended their social events of the school year with a campfire. After a delicious picnic lunch, the girls gathered around the fire and some of the members had a very impressive program. The campfire ended with the group singing Girl Reserve songs.

CHAPEL

Chapel was opened Wednesday by the singing of several patriotic songs for the devotionally Mr. Randle read the scripture and had a short discussion. He closed with a prayer.

James Thomas and Thomas Bell, Jr. June 18th will go to Boys' State, the Jacksons representatives of the American Legion and the Rotary Club, respectively. It is a competition to be chosen and one of which to be chosen.

SENIORS
On Saturday morning the Girl Reserve officers for next year and Miss Haynes honored the seniors with a breakfast at the Avenue "Shack" which is several miles west of town. The noon for this occasion was Orange Juice.

Tomato, Stuff, Eggs, Fried Chicken, Butter, Jelly, Tea.

The seniors who were honored at this affair were: Mary, Martha, Sue Rowell, retiring secretary, Betty Rule, retiring President, Grace Smith, retiring Vice-President, Betty Ann Smith, Isabel Gattle, Andy Moss, Dorothy Parks, Kathleen Caribbe, Almeda, Flahman, Marjorie, and the other Girl Reserve members.

G. R. S. DIRT

Sunday night, Margaret, known for her very shabby dress, was seen at the house of Mr. Bailey.

Last week we said Louise and John might have a party. It doesn't seem as John was only trying to fool him.

Benton was evidently mixed up Sunday night. He had asked Jean Scott for a date but he was with Jean again.

Rowe Bristow says that he's satisfied.

Saturday morning about 10 p.m. a car got up at 4:30 and went off to the breakfast. More money to those of the other side.

In order to leave the school grounds and Mr. Watson, Billy Townsend, secretary of the school, was seen at his desk. His departure from the school was rather hasty after Mr. Randle was seen coming down the hall.

Congratulations to the Yearbook staff. It is really a masterpiece. What the staff!

When you buy tires

DON'T BE MISLED BY CONFUSING OFFERS

Here are the facts!

- When you see long discounts or tricky offers don't be misled. Are the prices quoted on first, second, third or fourth line tires?
- You don't want the lowest priced tire in town—self it might blow out tomorrow. You don't want a tire "bargain" that has to be replaced in 5000 miles or less.
- You do want the most miles, the greatest safety and trouble-free service—at the lowest first cost. . . . That's what we've got!

Get a better deal here—no matter what type or size tire you buy!

- Whether you want THE U.S. TIRE, the Royal De Luxe, or the Royal Master, America's foremost safety tire, get one here before you buy any tire.

G. R. S. WINS AGAIN

On Monday afternoon before a rather large crowd, Grenada baseball boys won over Como boys for the North Central Mississippi Championship. William Spears is proud to be the "hero" of this occasion. He pitched the entire nine innings, allowing Como only one score. In the end of the seventh inning, he knocked a beautiful home run. At the end of the game Grenada had won nine to one. They had also won over Como last Friday with an eight to nothing score. Our baseball boys have made our High School proud of them for their splendid record and this champion team will long be remembered. The last game of the season will be here Monday when we play Greenwood.

This issue of the "Bulldog" is dedicated to Billy and Katy—the real editors-in-chief of this year's "Bulldog."

SENIORS TAKING EXAMS

I was, fortunate or unfortunately—as the case may be, in the Study hall when the Seniors were having their final Algebra II exam Monday morning. Most of them looked "Hollow-eyed" perhaps, from trying to learn in one night what they were supposed to have learned all during the year. Mr. Watson, Miss Hammond, and Mr. Hathorn officiated at this trying ordeal, by walking around, attempting to be pleasant for the sake of the poor Algebra victims. When entering the study hall, each of them had a "scared" "twitery" look on his face. Their expressions changed just before the papers were given out to a look of dreighted anticipation. Then, the papers were given out and again their expression changed. This time they looked at their papers with wonder, amazement; and as if they had been stricken by an awful disease. The sun-shine in their early morning faces had disappeared completely. I will try to give some accounts of this by taking a few rare specimen of Seniors for examples.

Katy Carlisle: Her big blue eyes were opened very wide and she just stared blankly at the sheet of questions. Each dozen times I looked back at her, she still had that wide-eyed, dumb expression on her face.

Tommye Houston: The only word I could think of when I saw "Uncle" Tommy and that was, "Pitiful." His expression on his "mug" was a mixture of perplexity, anger, disgust, boredom, hopelessness, dismay, worry, wonder, and as if he had seen a ghost. I. D. Boone: The look on his face was like a medieval christian martyr getting ready to be thrown to the lions. "Poor" Keeton: I pondered long, I searched the encyclopedia, the dictioary, and even tried to make up a word to describe the look on his face. Sadly, after thinking hard and long I came to the conclusion that the title that he is known best by still fits the occasion—"Poor" Keeton.

Jack Calk: Although Jack isn't a Senior, he was the only optimistic one in the whole group. He looked as if he were saying to himself, "I'll do better next year, perhaps."

MISSISSIPPI SHERIFF

Says:

"It is gratifying to see the ever increasing WHOLESOME conditions that now surround the sale of beer . . ."

William Propst, militant sheriff of Lowndes county, in a recent comment concerning the work of the Brewers and Mississippi Beer Distributors Committee, said:

"Your Committee has done one of the most efficient and effective jobs of public service I have ever witnessed.

"In Lowndes and Clay Counties alone your constructive work would have fully justified your existence. I cooperated with your Clean Up or Close Up program in Coldwater, where a group of highly objectionable, dirty, crime breeding honky-tonks were eliminated, and our community freed of an eyesore as well as a source of constant trouble to local officers.

"This office, and sheriff's offices in every section of the state, as well as City and other County officials, have been glad to give your Committee every cooperation because you have been and are diligent and conscientious in your work.

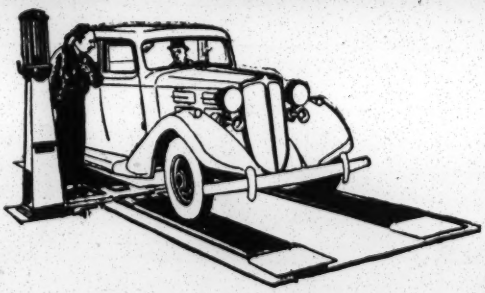

"It is gratifying to see the ever increasing wholesome conditions that now surround the sale of beer in our state which is the direct result of your constructive program."

Through the cooperation of men like Sheriff Propst, the thinking public and law-enforcement officials — Beer — a beverage of moderation, made from wholesome American farm products, under rigid tests for purity and quality — is increasingly available to you in WHOLESOME surroundings.

You can help protect these important benefits by patronizing the wholesome, law-abiding retail beer outlets in your community.

LOCKETT-WILLIAMSON WEDDING IS PLANNED

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Williamson, of Meridian announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Imogene Ervin Williamson, of Grenada, to James Russell Lockett, son of Mrs. C. E. Lockett, and the late Mr. Lockett, of Grenada. The wedding will be solemnized June 22.

Miss Williamson is a graduate of Meridian High School and attended Whitworth College where she was a junior cheer leader and president of the Home Economics Club. She also attended Mississippi Southern College where she was president of the Mu Omega Sorority and vice president of the Pan Hellenic Council, and the University of Tennessee where she was active in school and social organizations. For the past three years she has been a member of the faculty of the Grenada High School.

Mr. Lockett is a graduate of the Moorhead High School and is associated with the C. E. Lockett Lumber company in Grenada.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

Miss Imogene Williamson, bride-elect of Mr. James Russell Lockett, was beautifully honored Friday evening at eight o'clock, May 16, by Mrs. Gordon Bingham and Miss Mabel Walker, at the Bingham home, with an unique and entertaining miscellaneous shower. Cut flowers in Spring colors added beauty to the reception rooms.

The living room, with chairs arranged in rows, was centered by a white carpet which led to an improvised altar arranged at the fire place. The mantle held massed pink roses and white tapers—at each side of the fire place, white, trolleys decorated with pink roses were arranged. The guests were seated facing the altar, when Mrs. C. E. Lockett, mother of the groom-to-be, and Miss Williamson entered and were seated at places of honor. At this time delicious fruit punch and heart shaped cakes, decorated with pink rosebuds, was served by Mrs. C. V. McKell and Mrs. Donald Sharp. Miss Mabel Walker at the piano, played several arrangements during the refreshment period. While she played "O Promise Me" young Clifford Davis lighted the "altar" candles. This ceremony was followed by the song "I Love You Truly," a duet, sung sweetly by little Misses Vivian McKell and Donna Jesse Sharp. They were lovely in white tulle dresses featuring an empire bodice of white satin. They wore halo hats of tulle.

Continuing the wedding in miniature, Miss Walker struck the chords to the Wedding March as a signal for the bride party to enter. The bride, little Julia Bingham, adorable in a bride's dress fashioned of crepe paper, and handsome young Orley Lilly as the groom advanced to where the minister, Woodridge Davis, stood before the altar. To make the wedding even more personal, the names of Mr. Lockett and Miss Williamson were used in this clever ceremony. Donna Jean Sharp and Vivian McKell were attractive bridesmaids.

A few moments after the conclusion of the ceremony, and exit of the youngsters the "bridal party" returned laden with many lovely miscellaneous gifts and placed them before the honoree.

This lovely affair was attended by the following friends, Mesdames D. Y. Dubard, W. W. Garner, E. Hallam, H. J. Ray, Jr., S. L. Calhoun, E. M. Whitaker, Clifford Davis, G. Bingham, John Rundle, C. V. McKell and Donald Sharp; Misses Jackie Lane, Betty Rule, Grace Smith, Lizzie Horn, Mabel Walker and the bride-elect, Miss Williamson, and Mrs. C. E. Lockett.

CELEBRATES SECOND BIRTHDAY

Lovely little Sandra Paschal celebrated her second birthday Saturday afternoon when a small group of friends were invited to her birthday party at the lovely country home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Paschal. The guests were members of Sandra's Sunday School class, and included Mamie Louise Willingham, Martha Fay Williams, Betty Claude Holland, Tommie Hodges, Edward Perry, Mary Carolyn Martin and Sarlene Deaton.

At refreshment time, a beautiful birthday cake with two candles was served with ice cream.

The guests arrived bringing dainty little gifts to the honoree, for which she thanked each one very sweetly.

Mrs. R. C. Trusty returned from Alexandria, Va., on Tuesday after a visit of several weeks with her children, Mr. and Mrs. Knight, and an added visit in Pittsburgh, Pa., with her other daughter, Miss Margaret Trusty.

Mrs. J. E. Shaw left Sunday for Montgomery, Ala., to meet her husband, Capt. J. E. Shaw, of Camp Blanding, Fla., for a week's visit there in the home of an aunt.

Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Paschal visited their brother, Mr. F. H. Paschal at Ripley, Tenn., recently. They in company with their brother's family went to the home of their parents at Cottage Grove, Tenn., on Mother's Day.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Jackson spent Monday in Memphis.

MISSIONARY FROM CHINA SPEAKS

Miss Julia Wasson, native Mississippian, and teacher of the Bible and of mathematics in the McThyre School in Shanghai for 32 years, spoke before a large group of church women Monday afternoon at the regular meeting of W. S. of C. S. held at the Methodist Church.

Miss Wasson, a deep student of history and an experienced observer of affairs in the Orient, gave her audience some serious thoughts to think of and pray over. Miss Wasson is a retired Missionary of the Methodist Church, having reached the age of 66 years, she feels it her duty to return to her native land, not to retire, but to do lecture work and fulfill the long cherished desire to acquaint her fellow countrymen with conditions in China as seen through the eyes of an American teacher and Missionary. During Miss Wasson's Missionary work covering 32 years, she spent only 4 of those years with her beloved mother, Mrs. Mary Wasson, who resided near Kosciusko at present she is living with her sister, Mrs. Eddie Mitchell at Kosciusko.

Miss Wasson spoke of General Chiang Kie Chek in words of praise, leaving the impression that in this world where conflict is waged between the dictators of totalitarian powers and leaders of democracies that he and his nation were with the democracies. The program for the afternoon was as follows:

With The County Agent

All farmers that have not sold their "1938 Loan" cotton must do so before July 31. Recent advances in the price of cotton make it possible for our farmers to sell their loan cotton at a profit. During the past few months all farmers owning cotton in the "1938 Loan" received a statement of its value from the Commodity Credit Corporation. Cotton buyers will buy this cotton from these statements, or if the statements have been lost they will assist farmers in getting duplicate statements.

Three Grenada County Club boys, Thomas Gillon, of Gore Springs Vocational Department and one Boy Scout, and Melville Johnson of Holcomb Vocational Department will attend the forestry and conservation camp on June 9 at the Natchez Trace State Park, being conducted by the State Forestry and Chemurgic Association. They are being sponsored jointly by the Lions Club, Boy Scouts and the County Agricultural Leaders Coordinating Council.

The Royle Brothers (farmers of Beat 3) have a good crop of oats and lespeche. They have decided that they can grow many times more feed with this double cropping than by growing corn.

Mr. J. F. M. Bickerstaff, one of the county's oldest farmers, is growing vetch for the first time in his life. He states that he learned to grow it from one of his colored neighbors, Bob Williams. He says for three years Bob has made an average of 40 bushels of corn per acre following hairy vetch on land that formerly only produced about ten bushels of corn per acre.

Mr. J. W. Wood, our Administrative Cotton Assessor, is making plans to start our farm compliance program on June 11. He requests all farmers to cooperate with the field supervisors by going with them to visit each field.

STATE UTILITY TO SPEND MILLION

Construction Program Keeps Step With Customer Needs and Defense Program

Almost a million dollars will be spent by Mississippi Power & Light Company for the construction of new transmission lines and the maintenance of existing lines during 1941, President Rex I. Brown announced recently.

In making public the extent of the new construction budget, Mr. Brown stated that it was concrete evidence of his company's faith in the continued development of the territory which it serves.

Pointing to the U. S. Army Air Base at Jackson and numerous defense industries, including a shell box factory, Mr. Brown said that he believed 1941 would be an especial year for Mississippi in its long fight to balance agriculture with industry.

Whatever comes, Mr. Brown expressed confidence that his company was prepared to meet all power demands, thanks to its interconnection with the nationwide power grid—a development of private industry during the past several years. By means of this interconnection, Mississippi Power & Light Company has available at present eight separate sources of power, assuring an uninterrupted flow of energy over its lines.

Mr. Brown revealed that his company will continue its policy of extending rural lines wherever service demands existed. More than 800 rural customers were added by the company in 1940, he said, and from 850 to 1000 will be served by construction now underway.

Mr. Brown also revealed that sales of appliances by dealers in the territory served by the company totaled $2,252,656 during 1940. The company sponsored numerous sales campaigns during the year to assist dealers.

In view of the overnight expansion of defense industries, Mr. Brown stated that Mississippi Power & Light Company is keeping in close contact with its present industrial customers with a forethought of contemplating their future power requirements and keeping informed of prospective new industrial business as well as power demands of the Army and Navy and other governmental agencies.

In concluding his announcement regarding 1941 plans, Mr. Brown disclosed that his company is now serving more than 65,000 customers in the 42 counties of West Mississippi. Of the total, 40,000 are residential customers, 10,000 are rural customers, 10,000 commercial and 5,000 industrial.

If Your Telephone Is Rung by Mistake

Here are the Probable Causes

Some telephones are being rung by mistake because some folks fail to take proper precautions when telephoning. A study of the condition shows that calling numbers from memory is the most common cause of these wrong-number calls.

When in the least doubt about a number, it is always best to check with your directory—be sure you have the right number in mind, then give it to the operator. Speak distinctly, with lips about half an inch from the mouthpiece.

It takes only a moment to look up a number, and doing so will frequently save time and spare you the embarrassment of getting someone to the phone by mistake.

The telephone company and your neighbors, who are bothered daily by wrong-number calls, will appreciate your cooperation in correcting the trouble.

ly lacking in the qualities of vision, enthusiasm and idealism. He urged the graduates to closely examine and question the world about them, and not to thoughtlessly accept its mode and pattern of thought, and to aid in perpetuating its outworn and untrue philosophies and practices.

Proclaiming the joy of personal achievement, he invited the young men and women before him to strive for high objectives, having faith in God as a very real and very personal Leader.

The history of mankind indicated clearly that there was a great plan and purpose in the world and in the universe, and though waves of materialism and false philosophies often obstructed the progress of the great plan, nevertheless the plan was always in process of evolving, and life's greatest privilege was to have an active and constructive part in its operation.

Dr. Gehri is to be congratulated for the clarity with which he spoke, for the conviction with which he delivered his message, and for the very splendid substance which was the essence of his address. Many of the older generation were very sincerely appreciative of the privilege of being present at the commencement.

The Grenada Churches

By HERBERT B. ALLEN

ALL SAINTS' EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In the intimate atmosphere of All Saints' Episcopal Church there is a feeling of the presence of God such as is characteristic of small and beautiful churches. Colorful with the ecclesiastical art of the past, erected in glowing tribute to the memory of departed loved ones, All Saints' is distinctive among Grenada's lovely churches.

Episcopal churches have the delightful advantage of being always open to the public for meditation and prayer—and our favorite spot in Grenada is the red carpeted aisle of All Saints' and the peace and quiet of its sanctuary in which to think out our problems, both business and personal.

Here the grand and noble ritual of the Episcopal Church, with a tradition and continuity reaching into the early Christian era, is faithfully observed. Here one may relax and slowly recede into the spirit of the glorious past. It is indeed a refuge from the strife and contention of the stormy world.

From the pulpit of All Saints, the world of today is seen in its true perspective. There the triumvirate of history, theology and philosophy are truly perceived and interpreted. In this day of Hitler's domination of the world, and of our apparently uncertain destiny, the Reverend C. S. Liles taking as his text the words of the prophet Habakkuk, "For the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the waters cover the seas", constructively and graphically demonstrated the wisdom and the comfort of turning to the Bible in times of stress and confusion.

Nearly 2,500 years ago Habakkuk proclaimed that truth in the face of the devastation wrought by the Babylonian conquerors, who in their time left utter devastation in their path that the Nazi regime systematically copies today. Mr. Liles declared that "The evidence of history indicates that God's justice will prevail." He cited Saint Paul and Martin Luther as having delivered messages in the spirit of Habakkuk.

"The world is huffed by iniquity following on iniquity," but said Mr. Liles. "We recognize cause and effect in the material world, and so, we master it. We refuse to master it in the far more important realm of human and social life, and behold our civilization totters on the brink of ruin."

The answer to our doubts and uncertainties is direct and to the point. "There is no place in the church for anything but optimism—and there is no same optimism excepting Christian optimism."

COURT OF HONOR FOR BOY SCOUTS

A regular Court of Honor of the Boy Scouts will be held in the Community House on Tuesday night, May 27. An outstanding feature of this Court of Honor will be the awarding of the Eagle Scout Badge to Bobby Townes. This is the highest distinction that a Boy Scout can secure and this medal comes direct from Scout Headquarters, New York City, on recommendation from the Delta Area Council. It is said that only one boy in seven hundred attains this distinction. The Grenada Troop is proud of the fact that Bobby Townes is the third boy to secure this prize this year. Previously Leon Provine and Bonnie Cohen became Eagle Scouts. If three of these boys are outstanding students in Grenada High School and are the proud possessors of Scout Scarfs covered with Merit Badges.

The public is invited to the Court of Honor on Tuesday night.

25 yearlings and two-year old heifers; 35 cows, heavy springers and with calves by their sides, and 15 bulls. These cattle are Domino, Bean Mischief and Anxiety breeding. The best breeding that you can find. These cattle have been consigned to us by Porter Bros., Amarillo, Texas, to be sold regardless of price. Four weeks ago we sold a consignment of cattle for Porter Bros., and everyone who bought them has been well pleased with them and asked when we would have another sale. These cattle are as good, if not better, than the ones we had before.
